Let's Stop
Talking and Dig the Sewer Now!

AS Glendalians we were all proud to have our Uncle Sam tell us we were the fastest growing city in the United States. We felt in our hearts that our city was the best to live in, but we did not pay much attention to its growth in population, only as it affected the price of real estate.

The fact that we loved our city and boosted it, without doubt is the dominating cause for its great growth. Wherever we went we talked of Glendale and this has spread throughout the country, until our growth has been such as to cause the rest of the country "to sit up and take notice."

In taking stock we find numerous reasons for our enthusiasm. Glendale as a city is unique in many ways. It is a strictly American city with no race problems to confront it. It is a city of homes, homes of the kind of citizens who are the backbone of our American ideals.

We are like one big family, the knowledge that you live in Glendale is the only requirement to join our family circle.

Glendale is a clean city, both morally and otherwise. In checking over our family we find but a few black sheep. As our city grows it will have its temptations and mistakes will be made. Let's guide its future as we have its past and keep it clean; a city without the pitfalls so common in some places.

We have our differences and at times get quite heated, but is this not normal? Our different district improvement associations work hard for their districts, but when it comes to a problem that needs co-operation to put over we all get together for the general good.

One of the most vital problems we are facing right now and one which must be faced and answered is the sewer problem. It must be solved before it stops our growth. With large office buildings being erected, two four-story, one six-story and numerous smaller buildings being constructed, our problem gets more complex.

It will take the co-operation of our entire citizenship to put over the sewer project. It will mean that all sectionalism must be buried and the disposal plant installed in a section recommended by an impartial engineer.

We are of the opinion that the activated sludge system is the one that should be adopted. At one time we were in favor of an outfall to the sea, but after investigation we have come to the conclusion that eventually all outfall sewers will be discontinued unless the sewage is first handled by a treatment plant.

Let's quit marking time on this momentous sewer question and answer the problem for all time.

The drive for funds for the Boy Scout Budget is about over. We hope it goes over big, for this work is one that increases the assets of our city and assures our future. The boy of today is the man of tomorrow.

This drive for funds will probably be the last until next fall. Glendale has already taken care of the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, the Y. M. C. A. and the Community Service.

As a suggestion, which is not original with us but is being talked of in all parts of the city: Why not start a "Community Chest" before the next season for financial drives is upon us?

The people of Glendale are as generous as may be found anywhere. They have met all demands upon them. It is our opinion that a Community Chest would be a great benefit not only to the citizens of this city, but to organizations that are worthy of assistance. It would permit giving at one time with the knowledge that there would be no further demands on our funds for such purposes. With a competent committee in charge, an annual budget could be submitted before the drive started, with all organizations that should be supported taken care of. This would assure the greatest efficiency in our giving.

The Community Chest has proven successful in a great many cities and there is no reason to doubt its success here.

$4,000 IN SIGHT FOR BOY SCOUTS

First Day of Drive Boosts

TEAMS OPTIMISTIC

Believed Thermometer
Will Touch $6000 Mark
by This Afternoon

The Boy Scout campaign was boosted almost to $4000 Wednesday noon at the Exchange club luncheon when the leaders of the Rotary, Kiwanis and Exchange clubs reported to the chief scout master, Col. James W. Everington, the progress of their patrols.

A spirit of optimism permeated the men, especially when A. L. Baird of the Kiwanis club and Dr. Warren Z. Newton of the Exchange club told of not having a single turn down.

The patrol leaders will report again this noon at the Rotary club luncheon and it is hoped to make the thermometer rise up to the $6000 mark.

"The Rotary, Kiwanis and Exchange clubs have pledged themselves 100 per cent to get back of the Boy Scout campaign and with this responsibility resting on their shoulders the campaign is bound to go over with a bang," declared Dr. E. H. Parker, campaign chairman this morning.

"There has been some 'laying down' of a number of the men in one or two of the clubs but most of the members and especially the patrol leaders feel honor bound to make every effort to reach the $11,000 goal by tomorrow noon," he added.

According to Col. Everington the final reports and accounting will be made Friday noon at the luncheon of the Kiwanis club.

"It is highly important," he declared, "for every patrol leader to check up the teams in his patrol and find out just what has been done. We haven't heard from half of the teams and accordingly it makes it quite difficult to tell just where we stand. There's one thing certain, though," he emphatically emphasized, "and that is that if the Rotary, Kiwanis and Exchange clubs expect to put this campaign over by Friday the members have got to 'dig in' and do some tall old hustling."

AVOID COLD FEET THROUGH CLEVER STRATEGY

Water Department Uses
Auto Suggestion on Public to Get Results

The public did not pay any attention to the first sign that employees of the city water department put on the door to the department at the city hall. It read, "Please close the door."

Repeated failures to "please close the door" led to more drastic measures. Another sign was hoisted. It read: "Those who can't read should pay no attention to the other sign."

The charm failed to work. The door was left open, and the employees of the water department felt the symptoms of that disagreeable mid-winter ailment, "cold feet."

Then inspiration came. Mrs. Frances T. Rees, cashier of the department, sat at her desk and talked on her fingers to the typewriter. This is what she produced, and which was hailed by the other members of the department as a suitable work of art:

"To whom it may concern:

"Please close the door !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

ff.....(.) ff etc.

"I don't care how you do it—only do it, that's all."

"Use your own system—bang, slam, push, or swing it—it's all the same to us."

"But—

"If the public wants to be real sweet,

"Shut the door so we won't have cold feet; "

"Us three."

"Nuff said !!!!!"

And now the door stays closed without any trouble.

HI CONTRACTOR WANTS SIX ROOM HOME IN GLENDAL

Another man who does things in a big way and who will make a valuable citizen, has succumbed to the charm of Glendale. The man is George Mittry, contractor for the new high school plant at Verdugo and Broadway. He is now seeking a six-room house with a view of establishing a residence here. Realty men and owners of property on the market should take heed.

PLENTY OF CARS FOR BASKETBALL CHAMP GAME TONIGHT

There will be plenty of transportation on hand at the American Legion hall on East Broadway tonight to accommodate all who may care to attend the Legion League Championship basketball game at the U. S. C. gymnasium. The Glendale team and Huntington Park will stage a snappy preliminary for second honors previous to the main battle between Pasadena and Santa Monica for the championship. Pasadena "gets that way" through winning only four games and losing one to our own crew while Santa Monica won ten straight. Glendale has turned them bottom side up without exception in their last seven games. That's the luck of the game, though. The point is that there will be four very fast teams on the floor tonight and Glendale will put up a brand of ball that will make you glad you went, so climb aboard and help us root for Glendale.

The Legion post team has added two men to its string. One of them is Patrolman Kern.

Legion dance Saturday night at the Legion hall on East Broadway. Admission one dollar a couple. Marion Jones' orchestra will make the festive foot perform to perfection, so "come on over Skinnay!"

GLENDAL CATS WIN HONORS IN PACIFIC SHOW

Mrs. McOmber's Pet Gets Double Award; Mrs.
Card's Cat is First

Entries from Glendale captured two first prizes at the Pacific Cat Fanciers' show held this week at Hotel Green, Pasadena. "Billiken," a black Persian cat, entered by Mrs. F. S. Card of Glendale, was awarded first prize for the best black neuter and "Teddy Bear," short-haired neuter, entered by Mrs. L. McOmber, and received a first award. Mrs. McOmber's entry was also awarded the Glendale champion trophy by the Pacific Cat Fanciers' association. The show was very successful. More than 200 cats were entered.

DAY OF PRAYER FOR MISSIONS OBSERVANCE

The national "Day of Prayer for Missions" was observed by the Federated Missionary societies of Eagle Rock and Glendale, by an all-day meeting at the First Baptist church of Glendale, Friday, February 16, beginning promptly at 10 a. m., and closing at 4 p. m. Everyone is invited to bring box lunch. Coffee and tea will be served by the ladies of the church. The W. C. T. U. has given up its regular meeting and will unite with the missionary societies and assist in the program.

Several returned missionaries and home workers are expected to be present, one being Rev. Ogden, just returned from India, who will speak in the morning.

"We hope all members will feel it a privilege to be present the entire day. Offerings for Leprosy work in America will be taken up," said Mrs. Mottern, the secretary and treasurer of the federation.

VISITORS COME TO BURBANK CHURCH

Five Southern California towns have sent building committees to Burbank to inspect the Methodist church of this town. Rev. Thomas Allen, pastor of the church, has been delighted this week to show a number of people through the edifice and explain the various advantageous features of the church.

GLENDAL AVENUE CONDITION TO BE PRESENTED

City Manager Reeves to Urge Improvement on City Council

The improvement of Glendale avenue will be one of the things that will be brought to the attention of the city council by City Manager William Reeves, tonight. "The condition of Glendale avenue is a disgrace to this city," said Mr. Reeves this morning, "and it is a condition that should be remedied at the earliest possible moment. There are a number of preliminary matters that must be attended to before the actual work of improving the street can be started, and these should be started immediately. "I believe the condition of this street is diverting a good amount of business from Glendale avenue section for automobile owners simply will not pound over a street that is so rough. I will do all I can to have the improvement work of Glendale avenue speeded."

LAW WILL MAKE GAS PRICES STEADY

Legislation under which relief of motorists from excessive and fluctuating prices of gasoline may be expected doubtless will be foreseen in a comprehensive report touching not only gasoline prices but the methods of arriving at the same which will go into the United States Senate on or about March 1. It will be submitted by Senator Robert M. La Follette, chairman of the committee on manufactures, which, through a sub-committee operating under authority of a resolution adopted by the Senate April 20, 1922, has been making an investigation covering the years 1920, 1921 and 1922, says the National Motorist Association.

Information will be furnished the Senate specifically in this report as to the following: The stocks of crude and gasoline on hand and the relation of the prices of the latter to the former; the uniformity or lack of uniformity of prices asked by different companies and dates of same; agreements if any to raise prices and natural reasons in support of such agreements, and all such facts as bear upon the present increases of prices of gasoline in view of the decreased price of crude oil.

Upon the conclusions reached in the report, which will be based upon testimony of an exhaustive character, furnished by witnesses representing practically all of the larger oil companies of the country, legislation looking to the curbing of unfavorable or discriminating price situations doubtless will be recommended.

The trend of the investigation which has been followed closely by the N. M. A., would indicate that this legislation will aim at equal opportunities in the future for all producers; refiners and independents in the sale of gasoline.

WHAT PEOPLE THINK OF THE LARGER C. OF C.

GROWING PAINS

Your splendid editorial in last evening's Press regarding the multiplicity of clubs, groups, associations and whatnots, all delving into civic questions "hit the nail on the head."

Is it not a fact however, that back of all these movements is the "Glendale" spirit and a desire to "do for Glendale" at the sacrifice of time and effort on the part of the individuals who so unselfishly give their time to the pressing questions and needs for this growing community.

"It is true there is a lot of lost motion and a duplication of effort, a lack of team work and, through lack of organized effort, a lot of things are not accomplished, and many of the things accomplished, take double time and effort under the present method of small groups working separately.

But, is a healthy sign—these numerous committees and associations and, as others are formed and the city honeycombed with others which will spring up, a condition will be created which in itself will cause a desire to merge into one civic body, into one organization under one leadership and the

BOARD COMMENDS OFFICER FOR BRAVERY

Pass Resolution at Meeting Tuesday Night Upholding Conley's
Work

A resolution signed by all members of the board of trustees, commending night watchman E. W. Conley for his bravery in the discharge of his duty, when Thomas J. Dowd was apprehended and shot in the act of burglarizing the meat market owned by O. A. Kelly, at Adams and Central.

The resolution stated that where as the board of trustees had heard the report of the city marshal, Claude Bramble, as to the act of the officer on duty, the board saw fit to offer high commendation.

The inquest over the body of Dowd, whose identity has not yet been sworn to, was held Tuesday at the Sovern funeral parlors in Glendale. Officers Conley, McLaughlin, Gates and Bramble, and L. G. Sovern, of Los Angeles, were present. The resolution was witnessed to fact that the person known as Thomas J. Dowd had been killed by an officer, when caught in the act of burglary.

No further clue to the burglar's identity, other than the operator's license found on his person, has been learned, and the body will be buried as that of Thomas J. Dowd, 32 years of age.

CONTRACTOR ON HIGH IS EFFICIENT

So Declares George Lind-

Architect

CARPENTERS ON JOB 400,000 Feet of Lumber Has Been Delivered on the Site

George M. Lindsey, the local supervising architect of the new high school plant is delighted with the efficiency shown by the North Pacific Construction company, contractors in pushing the work. He considers that the progress made since the work started two weeks ago has been remarkable, taking into account the three stormy days which have interrupted it. He said 400,000 feet of lumber have arrived on the site and 400 cubic yards of concrete have been poured. All of the foundation of the science building has been completed and the walls are rising above grade to the first floor line. This will have been poured by Monday of next week.

About half the foundations are in for the auditorium and the main building. All the excavation has been completed for the practical arts building and the connecting wing from the main building to the practical arts.

The chief concern of Architects Austin and Lindsey at present is to find some loyal Glendelian, competent and trustworthy, who can be employed to see that the concrete is properly placed and mixed according to specifications. This work will be in addition to the general and constant supervision exercised by Mr. Lindsey as local supervisor of the work. Candidates for the position are asked to report to Contractor George Mittry, of the North Pacific Construction company, who is in charge of the job.

Fifty men are now at work, of whom 20 are carpenters and 30 are laborers.

At the rate it is going forward, Mr. Lindsey anticipates no difficulty in completing the plant at the date promised next September.

MOOSEJAW LUMBER REPRESENTATIVE VISITS HERE

So, California Building
Looks Good to Man
From North

Coming from the snow country of the far north for a visit to the centers of building industry in Southern California, Mr. Walter Thorne, general manager of the Imperial Lumber Yards, Limited, at Moosejaw, Saskatchewan, was a visitor at the Bettingen Lumber company's office here yesterday.

The Imperial yards comprise the Bettingen Canadian interests. Mr. Thorne expressed his interest in the tremendous building activity everywhere evident in Southern California.

One of the Bettingen men told the story of how Moosejaw received its odd name. The tale is that a trip was being made through the Saskatchewan state by a sleigh drawn by oxen. When a portion of the sleigh broke down, and the traveler was forced to stop and make repairs, he used the jaw bone of a moose to fix the broken place in the sleigh. The Indians, who had been much interested in the proceedings, thereupon named the village Moosejaw, which has been its name since.

AUTO ACCIDENTS OF SINGLE DAY

Two automobile accidents occurred yesterday to mar the quiet of an otherwise peaceful day. Machines driven by A. H. Corse of Venice and E. H. Haviland, 302 North Verdugo road, collided on the San Fernando road at 12:15 o'clock this morning. Little damage was done.

Harry Moore, 304 East Broadway, and R. S. Chaffin, 26 Painter street, Los Angeles, were driving machines that came together at the corner of Louise and Broadway at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The damage was slight.

Kenneth Lee, 1115 Stanley, reported to the Glendale police that the owner of an Essex car backed his machine into a bicycle belonging to Kenneth, and that the driver of the car continued on his way without offering assistance.

SCHOOL PUPILS GIVE MILK TO NEAR EAST

416 Cans Delivered by the Grammar Children at Wilson Ave. Lecture.

Donations of 416 cans of milk were received at the lecture given and three reels of motion pictures shown by Rev. Charles W. La Fontaine on the Near East Relief work at the Wilson Avenue Intermediate school yesterday afternoon. The lecture was attended by children of that and the Colorado and Pacific Avenue schools. The admission fee for the programs that are being given by Rev. La Fontaine is one or more cans of milk to be used in the Near East Relief work.

The milk benefit tonight will be at the Broadway school auditorium for the children and friends of the Broadway and Doran Street schools. The film shows the educational and vocational work being done among the children of the Near East. Last night Rev. La Fontaine gave the lecture and showed the film at the Tropic Presbyterian church. The program for Friday afternoon will be at the Central Avenue school for the Central and Columbus Avenue school children. It will be at 3:15 o'clock. The same program will be given at the same time at the Cerritos Avenue school.

To date Rev. La Fontaine states that in Glendale there has been donated 533 cans of milk. During the campaign in Long Beach, over 7000 cans of milk were given.

EMPIRE BLDG. NOW

Rev. La Fontaine Presents
Need of Children of Near East

Two speakers who addressed the Federation of Parent-Teacher associations on very different themes Wednesday afternoon asked for help in empire building.

Superintendent Richardson D. White appealed for organized aid in a campaign to carry the proposed $500,000 school bond issue.

He said: "We are building an empire in Southern California and if we would wake up and realize that an empire cannot be built without paying for it we would appreciate the necessity for expansion along all lines."

Rev. La Fontaine, who appealed for Near East Relief, said: "We are building a new nation out of children. There are no children in Armenia except our children; all the rest have been killed off, and few adults have survived."

The meeting was held at Glendale High and about 30 presidents and committee chairmen of the various Glendale P. T. A.'s were present.

Mrs. H. V. Henry was named as Glendale's representative on the committee to nominate officers of the district federation and Mrs. A. H. Brown was elected as her alternate.

Albert Blanford, athletic supervisor, referred to the federation a request he had received from the state board to fill out a questionnaire based on a survey of recreational and athletic activities of the schools. A committee of which he was made chairman was appointed to assemble the information and fill out the document. A full report will be found elsewhere.

CITY CHURCHES PLAN COMMON LENTEN PROGRAM

All the Glendale churches represented in the ministerial association sent delegates to a meeting held at the Central Christian church Wednesday afternoon to lay out a common program for pre-Easter services. This meant representatives from the Christian, Baptist, Congregational and Episcopal churches, the three Methodist and two Presbyterian churches.

No revival meetings will be held but each church will put on its own campaign for church attendance and re-consecration. They will unite in publicity and special days, and will put on noon-day meetings the last week before Easter at the Glendale Theatre with prominent speakers from out of the city.

The special day will be March 4, and each succeeding Sunday will be a special day on which the churches will have a common program. On one of these Sundays the ministers will exchange pulpits. All will emphasize evangelism and the Sunday before Easter will be "Decision day."

Several committees were appointed—the committee on special days being composed of Dr. Harry Rasmus, Dr. James F. Winward and Rev. E. E. Ford. Rex Kelley, secretary of the association, and Rev. E. E. Ford will arrange for the noon-day meetings. Publicity will be handled by Rev. Clifford Cole, Rev. C. M. Caldwell, and Rev. J. C. Livingston.

EXCHANGE CLUB DISCUSSES SCOUTS

About fifty members showed up at the noon luncheon of the Exchange club held in the chamber of commerce auditorium Wednesday and the session was devoted almost entirely to the Boy Scout drive. Representatives of troops and patrols which have been sponsored by other civic organizations were present and plans for conducting the drive were discussed. The Exchange club has undertaken the first canvass of those counted upon as regular contributors.

BOY SCOUTS IN SCHOOL WORK DISCUSSED

Richardson D. White Tells Why He Is Believer in Movement

The Boy Scouts of America have one booster in Glendale of whom they can well feel proud. He is Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools and a firm believer in the boy scout program of character development and citizenship training, as is attested by the following article which he wrote tellingly of the scout work and its relation to the public schools:

"Just at this time when the boy scout movement is making such rapid strides all over the United States," writes Mr. White, "it would perhaps not be out of place to discuss briefly the relation of the scout movement to the schools, in the first place as it exists now, and in the second place as it probably will exist in the future."

"That the two should be very definitely and closely related seems almost self-evident in the light of their common objective—namely, the making of good citizens."

"Even a cursory study of the scout manual, accompanied by some observation of the actual work of the scout troops, will convince even the most skeptical that a very definite program has been worked out which is essentially educational in its character, and one which is calculated to create in the boy's mind high ideals of citizenship. Moreover, to an educator it must be very evident that the program has been worked out by experts on child psychology who understand the stage of mental development that the boy has reached at the time when he is expected to take up scouting."

"Moreover the scout plan of education aims directly at its objective and works straight ahead without swerving for any point. It should therefore be hailed by teachers everywhere as a great aid in the solution of the problem of handling the boy at the most difficult stage of his development—namely, from twelve to fifteen years."

"At present the relation between the schools and the scout movement is a very loose one. School men in general undoubtedly recognize the educational value of the scout work and are indirectly aiding therein by giving their services as members of scout councils, courts of honor, as scoutmasters, and in other capacities. There will also be found among them those who contribute to the financial support of the movement. It may be said however, that for the most part the connection ends right here and is therefore a very loose and informal one."

"As I stated in the beginning, since the scout movement has a definite educational objective, it should be closely connected with the public schools, and there is abundant evidence that a closer connection will probably exist in the future. For example, there are at the present time several committees of educational organizations along this line, committees which have attempted to answer the question of what this connection should be, and how it should be brought about. One of these is a committee of the department of superintendence, of the national educational association, and another is a committee, appointed in November, 1922, by the convention of school superintendents of California."

"As further evidence of the interest now existing in this matter, two definite experiments have been carried on, one in the large city of Detroit, Michigan, and the other in the smaller city, Fort Scott, Kansas. In both places the connection between the schools and the scout movement is definite and official, and so far the plans seem to be working successfully."

"I venture to predict that the studies now going on and those which will be undertaken in the near future will unquestionably lead not only to cooperation between the scout movement and the schools, but to a very much more definite coordination of the work than anything now existing. In fact it does not seem to me too visionary to predict that some day the scout movement will be carried on by the schools as a regular part of their program."

Women are not having a real good time unless about four of them are talking at once.

PEERLESS DYERS AND CLEANERS GIVE DISCOUNT

The Peerless Dyers and Cleaners, 221 East Broadway, has put on a special stunt every week that should attract much attention from those who believe in saving clothes. Elsewhere in this issue a large advertisement gives full details. This week a discount of 20 per cent will be given on all cleaning and dyeing work, and in next Thursday's issue of the Glendale Daily Press another announcement of special reductions will be given. The Peerless Dyers and Cleaners is under new management. The new management has one of the best equipped plants in this section, and has the reputation of turning out good work.

"Smithkins," said the young man's employer, "you may take a month off."

"Oh, sir," replied the clerk, "it is so good of you to suggest it. I have felt the need of a vacation for some time, but have hesitated to ask for it, knowing how busy we are. But it will do me good, and I thank you for your consideration."

"Smithkins," said the employer, "are you crazy?"

"Why, no, sir. Didn't you say I might take a month off?"

"Certainly that is what I said. This is the first of the month, while last month's calendar remains over your desk. Take last month off, and keep it up to date. That's what I meant."

There was an earthquake recently which frightened the inhabitants of a certain town. One couple sent their little boy to stay with an uncle in another district, explaining the reason.

A day or two later the parents received this telegram:

"Am returning your boy. Send the earthquake."

MRS. FOX, 60 YEARS OLD AND GRANDMOTHER OF TWELVE, STILL ABLE TO BEAT YOUNG CHAMPION

Mrs. Caleb P. Fox created a sensation in the golfing world when she defeated Miss Glenna Collett, national golf champion. Mrs. Fox, about three times the age of the titleholder, won a close match at Belleair Heights, Fla., by one stroke. Their scores were 73 and 84. After the match, Mrs. Fox, who is past 60, proudly owned up that she has ten grandchildren. She has played in 24 women's championships and has always qualified. Last year she defeated Miss Collett on the Belleair Heights links, but since then Miss Collett has come to the front.

H. F. Croft of 1753 Gardena avenue will return Friday from his regular monthly business trip to Mojave, Lancaster and vicinity.

SUPERINTENDENT WHITE MAKES BOND APPEAL

Federated P. T. A. Holds Interesting Meeting; Bazaar Progress

Preparations for the Federated P. T. A. bazaar, to be held at the high school next week, are far advanced, according to reports at the meeting yesterday.

Mrs. L. T. Rowley, general chairman of the bazaar, submitted a list of contributions expected from the various associations and called upon their committees for reports. All gave satisfactory evidence of well organized work. She stated that Acacia is to furnish cooked food, Colorado, hot dogs and coffee; Central, aprons; Columbus Avenue, candy; Cerritos and Magnolia, fancy work; Doran, candy; High School, general store; Wilson Avenue, cakes; Glendale and Pacific Avenue, pies; Grandview, punch; Broadway, ice cream.

The cake contest which Wilson Avenue is putting on as a special evening feature at which ten valuable prizes are being offered for the best cakes manufactured by housewives, according to recipes furnished by Kate Brew Vaughn, and to be judged by her, was explained by Mrs. Rowley.

Mrs. Rowley stated that the judging would be based on texture, lightness, flavoring, icing (which must be plain) and neat appearance.

There was some discussion regarding the program of school re-enrichment proposed by Governor Richardson under which state supervisors of physical education would be done away with and other drastic changes would be made. Action on a resolution of protest was deferred until a subsequent meeting when members could be better informed.

Rev. La Fontaine invited the audience to attend the showing of the Near East films in the schools and churches, inasmuch as they represent the activities of the 17,000 children in just one of the Near East orphanages.

Said he: "We are building a new nation out of children. There are no children in Armenia except our children. All the rest have been killed off. We are sending them to the ordinary schools in the morning and to trade schools in the afternoon and by the time they are 15 they are self supporting. We are working directly under the United States Congress and have to report back to Congress. It costs us $15,000,000 a year. It is a governmental job without a governmental appropriation back of it. Southern California is asked to take care of 8500 children and that calls for $500,000. Glendale gave $7000 last year, and we need at least that sum this year. It costs $500 a year to take care of one of these children. I am going to ask each one of you presidents to try to get your organization to take care of at least one child."

"Besides the children in orphanages we have 100,000 children living on 4 ounces of bread a day each. They are shelterless and roam around our orphanages. Because the children on the inside are willing to sacrifice and reduce their own rations, these children on the outside are getting the 4 ounce daily ration."

"The Armenian government is doing what it can. It has 100,000 acres in cultivation for which we furnished tractors."

Superintendent White distributed of sheets showing the proposed distribution of funds to be realized from the $500,000 bond issue if it carries, and said:

"We are building an empire in Southern California and if we would wake up and realize that an empire cannot be built without paying for it we would understand the necessity for expansion along all lines."

"You will remember that in the year 1920 the United States census said Glendale had a population of 12,700. The Los Angeles County Superintendent of Schools, who has held the office for 21 years, says that he has tested over and over again the relation between the average daily attendance on the grade schools and the population, and has come to the conclusion that you do not mind at very far in estimating population if you multiply the average daily attendance on the elementary schools by ten. If that is the case, we had in Glendale January 1, 1923, between 35,000 and 36,000 people. That sort of growth is unprecedented. The schools have made a growth of 173 percent in the past five years and are twice as large as they were five years ago. Our school rooms have not increased in proportion to attendance as you know. We now have in operation ten portable buildings."

"If these bonds are carried it will mean considerable work. There are people who will oppose them. Unless we can organize and put on a real campaign they will not carry. But if we do the work necessary they can be carried. My suggestion is that your federation president call a meeting of the individual P. T. A. presidents and outline the campaign and see if we cannot put it across."

Mr. White stated that mimeograph copies of the statements he had distributed would be prepared by his office for the use of campaign workers and he explained in detail the true need to secure a school site in the northwest for an intermediate school, and another site in Verdugo Woodlands, which will soon be thickly populated.

In closing he referred briefly to the bill to be introduced in the legislature this term for the consolidation of all the schools of a district elementary and high, under one board.

BONNIE SCOTLAND ATMOSPHERE AT HOME WEDDING

Dainty Scottish Bride Becomes Mrs. John Young Montgomery

Like a breath of "Bonnie" Scotland was the atmosphere that pervaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Cullingworth, 1023 Boynton street, on Tuesday evening, February 13, when Mrs. Cullingworth's brother, John Young Montgomery, who has resided with her and Miss Janet Lorimer of Scotland, were united in marriage by Rev. W. E. Edmonds of the First Presbyterian church. The ceremony was witnessed by Mrs. Cullingworth and J. Allen Adams in the presence of a large number of relatives of the groom. Mr. Montgomery met his prospective bride at the train on Monday, Lincoln's birthday, but owing to his inability to procure a license to wed on the holiday, they were obliged to delay the ceremony twenty-four hours.

An interesting feature about the trunk which accompanied the prospective bride across the Atlantic was a large wedding cake of the "two-story" variety, solid with fruit and surmounted with China Cupids. This had been safely packed in a box, properly sealed. The romance of the young couple began in Scotland some years ago. They have taken up their residence at 1206 South Maryland avenue.

POPULAR PASTOR TO PREACH ON HOME LIFE

Rev. Clifford A. Cole, pastor of the Central Christian Church, is a mighty bold man, for he is "rushing in where angels fear to tread."

The announcement is made that, for four Sunday evenings, beginning February 18, he will preach sermons on the virtues and faults of husbands, wives, young women and young men in the order named, from data furnished by victims—wives telling on their husbands and the latter on their better halves, while the young folk will likewise tell tales on each other. The pastor will refuse to comment on signed communications. All the laudations and accusations must be anonymous, so he cannot be accused of holding up horrible examples or shining marks. Contrary to all known precedents, the "eternal feminine" will not have the last word in this, but the first, instead. Rev. Cole says he has been seriously handicapped in his preparation for the sermon by a number of men, who evidently are still lovers, even though long married, while extolling the wives' good points, gallantly declare that virtues so overshadow faults that the latter need not be mentioned. Wives, on the other hand, are very frank in admitting that their helpmates are far from bold, single in disposition and actions, while the young people are equally outspoken in their expressions. These services will doubtless attract many interested hearers.

Seriously speaking, the pastor hopes these sermons may help to remedy some things in the homes of church members that are not making for the best in Christian living.

SCHOOL PLAYET TICKETS ARE IN DEMAND

So great has been the demand for tickets for the beautiful playlet, "The Steadfast Princess," which is being given this afternoon and evening in the auditorium of Glendale High by pupils of the Glendale Avenue Intermediate, that an extra performance will probably be given next Monday night.

About fifty children are participating in the target number in groups as fairies, gnomes, soldiers and ladies in waiting. There are ten speaking parts which will test dramatic ability.

The affair is under the general direction of Miss Gladys Sharpe, vice-principal of the school, and the proceeds will go to the treasury of the Glendale Avenue Athletic Association, which corresponds to a student body organization.

TRACK MEET TODAY

The first track meet in the schedule arranged for the elementary schools of Glendale will take place this afternoon between Columbus and Glendale. The competitors at Columbus are promised to be a very interesting event.

A woman had left on a table three pounds of butter. Coming back home the butter was gone. Seeing a cat near by she at once suspected the animal, but to be sure, she took the cat to the scales to weigh it. She found it weighed just three pounds. "There's my butter," she exclaimed, "but where is the cat?"

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this natural color was to use a preparation was to make a hair wash, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Advertisement.

4-ROOM BUNGALOW

IN MONTROSE

Just one block above Honolulu avenue, looking directly over Sparr Heights, with BEAUTIFUL MOUNTAIN VIEW. Just a little over 1 block to streetcar. Living and dining room 12x18; kitchen 8x11, with sink, cooler, and large cabinet; bedroom 9x13; bath 5x5, closet 2x8, all plastered and wired for electric lights.
 On lot 50x150 with small corner cut off in rear to give rear entrance to lot from side street.
$1000 REWARD
 In twelve month; anyone can earn this reward by buying above place direct from builder with small payment down and balance like rent. Within less than one year this property will easily sell for $3500 to $4000.

When you buy it direct from builder at first cost it is not like buying property that has changed hands three or four times and each party making $500 each.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY
 easy. Parties who bought at corner of Broadway and Brand a few years ago did not invest in L. A. Why? Just because they had fore-sight enough to see the future advantages of GLENDALE'S climate over L. A. This was not luck—it was good judgment and foresight in buying ahead of the rush and high priced property. They knew good and well the mass of people would soon learn they could avoid the fog by securing higher altitude. Sure enough it has happened as they foresaw, and you well know the fancy profits they have made.

TODAY MONROSE is to Glendale what Glendale a few years ago was to L. A. These are facts you yourself know. Are you going to be one of those "IF I HAD..."

Remember, talking about it, won't make YOU any money. It is action that counts.

I have another 4-room house roughed in ready for plaster on lot adjoining above house; will finish to suit your own ideas and sell with small down payment.

Will also furnish business lot and put up store building on reasonable terms.

MRS. HORNSBY IS RECOVERING AT HOSPITAL

Wife of Star 2nd Baseman of St. Louis Nationals, Is Ill Here

Friends of Rogers Hornsby, the star second baseman of the St. Louis Nationals, well known in Southern California, were surprised to hear that Mrs. Hornsby had recently undergone a serious operation in a Glendale hospital.

Mrs. Hornsby, who has been sojourning in Southern California at their winter home between Glendale and Burbank, was suddenly taken ill one evening last week.

Dr. Thompson, Jr., of Burbank, was summoned, and immediately rushed her to the hospital and the operation was performed. The attendants report that she is out of danger and doing nicely.

Mrs. Hornsby is remembered as one of Fort Worth's most beautiful women and is well-known as a sport enthusiast. Her husband, Rogers Hornsby, of the St. Louis Nationals, needs no further introduction, for California is his home.

OPERATIONS OF NEAR EAST RELIEF

"Near East Relief maintains 125 orphanages, already overcrowded with 64,107 children," according to the Rev. L. A. Fontaine. "More than 50,000 others in poverty-stricken homes and refugee camps were cared for with the bare necessities of life. These wards of America therefore totaled 115,000 children previous to the recent Near East debacle. The 20,000 in Turkish military territory were all brought out during the fall of 1922. The Greco-Turkish disaster which has already created a new refugee population of 1,250,000 and threatens to make destitute another 1,250,000, makes imminent another tragic unprecedented orphan problem.

"Near East Relief has equipped and staffed: 59 relief stations, 44 hospitals, treating monthly 148,728 clinic patients; 16 homes for women rescued from Moslem harems. The total value of Near East Relief's operations to date approximate $73,000,000.

"The economy of administration of Near East Relief is due in a large measure to the exceptional amount of volunteer unpaid service contributed both overseas and in America. All members of the governing administrative committees overseas contribute their services without compensation. Wherever it is necessary to provide compensation in order to command the full-time service of orphanage directors, doctors, nurses or other administrators, the stipend is fixed on a purely social service basis designed to cover only reasonable living expenses. No large salaries, or salaries in excess of a moderate living rate, are paid by Near East Relief, either in America or overseas, and such moderate salaries as are paid for general administrative work are more than covered by special contributions designated by the donors for this item of necessary expense.

"Whistling Charlie," Infant Prodigy, Captivates Steamer's Passengers

"Whistling Charlie" McGinnis

New York. When the United States liner President Monroe recently arrived at New York, from London, after a trip through the rough weather experienced on the Atlantic this winter, she brought a tiny passenger, who, before the vessel docked, was known to everyone on board, from stokehold to bridge.

This individual, who was interviewed at length by reporters and photographed more than any celebrity that has reached our shores in many moons, is, as he himself declares, "Whistling Charlie" McGinnis, of Richmond Hill, L. I. Charlie, eighteen months old, who was accompanied by his mother, started passengers on the way over by his many accomplishments.

The first of these was his ability to whistle, clearly and distinctly, any tune he heard. When he first boarded the President Monroe, and toddled about the decks of the ship, whistling, officers and passengers, thinking some grown person was trifling the melodies, were very astonished when Charlie, lips puckered, would come into view.

Charlie demonstrated his whistling talent amid great applause at a ship's concert, when, accompanied by the orchestra, he rendered several popular numbers in professional manner. But whistling, which he has been doing since ten months old, was the least of Charlie's accomplishments. His greatest ability was that to consume food at any hour of the day or night.

Though at times the weather was so bad that even the most seasoned travelers found themselves unable to eat a real meal, Charlie was always at the dining room on time.

He attached himself to a steward, who saw to it that his meals were served promptly, whether Mrs. McGinnis was at table or not. Charlie would breakfast heartily, and then start his rounds of the President Monroe, visiting the officers and passengers all over the ship.

This duty done after each meal, he would go to the pantry, whistle a tune and then declare, politely, but firmly, "Charlie hungry," and stand by until his endless appetite was temporarily satisfied.

Stewards on the vessel declared that at one time Charlie was the only one to appear in the dining room and was greatly envied by those passengers, who for the time being had no use for food at all.

His consumption of food did not make Charlie lazy though, as was evidenced when he discovered two stewards with gloves on, boxing in their quarters. He insisted in having the big boxing gloves, which reached half way up his arms, put on him, and then slugged furiously away, until nearly exhausted.

From that day on Charlie had a daily go with a steward who was formerly a lightweight boxer and who declared that the infant would some day be able to handle his fists in good shape.

When the President Monroe docked Charlie was missing.

After a search of the ship he was found in his favorite haunt, the pantry. He refused to budge until given a big slice of bread and butter. Then he would not leave the ship without boxing gloves.

Finally bread in one hand, gloves dangling from the other, a cheery whistle shrilling from his tiny puckered lips, Charlie was carried by his mother to the pier, gone from the President Monroe, but not forgotten.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Funeral services for Max Moss, formerly owner of the Moss Laundry in South Glendale, who was killed at San Bernardino on February 9, will be held in the parlors of the L. G. Scovern company, 1000 South Brand boulevard, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rabbi Magnin of Los Angeles will officiate. Interment will be made at the Forest Lawn cemetery.

'I CAN EXPLAIN' TODAY ONLY AT THE GLENDALE

Gareth Hughes, the boyish star of Metro pictures, comes to the Glendale Theatre for today only in his latest six-reel production, entitled "I Can Explain." The photo-dramatic comedy has been adapted to the screen from the Argosy-All Story Magazine novel, "Stay Home," by Edgar Franklin, who has a long list of immensely popular stories to his credit.

The picture was produced for S. L. Arthur Sawyer and Herbert Lubin Picture by George D. Baker, who directed Mr. Hughes in "The Hunch," "Garments of Truth," and "Little Eva Ascends." It is released by Metro.

"I Can Explain" concerns a young wife, Dorothy Dawson, who, in attempting to put some of her money into the business firm of Dawson & Berry, is accused by her husband, Howard Dawson, of secretly meeting the junior partner of the firm, Jimmy Berry. Dawson becomes so incensed at the apparent attempt of his partner to wreck his home that he forces him to accompany him on a trip to South America, where they are about to open a branch of the business. Betty is found on the boat.

Senior Gardez, a power in the commercial world, promises the partners aid in their venture, but when suspicion again creeps around Betty and Jimmy, the latter attempts to escape. He is kidnapped. To tell any more at this point would be to spoil the pleasure of the deliciously humorous as well as thrilling scenes which follow. But that period of "I Can Explain" occurs just at the right time, and Jimmy is again reunited with his sweetheart, who had been led to believe him a scoundrel.

CATALINA ISLAND VILLA TO BE ENLARGED

In preparation for 1923 summer season Mr. Wrigley has ordered the enlargement of Catalina's Island Villa at Avalon to the extent of one hundred additional bungalows which will be built on the ocean front immediately adjoining the bath house. This portion of Island Villa will have a separate office and lounge room with complete facilities for guests making this a de luxe "open air hotel" of one hundred rooms, European plan, in a location unrivaled for the enjoyment of all of the many pleasurable features of Catalina.

These villas will be constructed very substantially with wall board sides, screened doors and windows and shingled roofs. Each villa is rented the same as a room in a hotel at moderate European plan rates.

It is contemplated to call this cluster of bungalows "Ocean Villa" inasmuch as it will be located immediately across the street from the Avalon bathing beach. The date of completion of "Ocean Villa" has been set for June 1 in order to have it in readiness for the early summer arrivals.

Trend of Fashion

By HELEN MERRILL EMERY
Extraordinarily decorative as they are, it is not surprising that printed fabrics played a leading role in the fashions of the new season. And their variety is almost endless. Possessing a simplicity as appealing as it is smart, the frock sketched is one of the most attractive exponents of the vogue for prints.

It is developed in crepe de chine whose dominant color is a sage green with different shades of henna, peacock blue, a touch of yellow and black in the pattern arranged to suggest stripes.

Long and slender in line, it has two wide tucks on the skirt and a deep hem, which gives the effect of a third tuck. At the left side there is a panel of cream color embroidered batiste extending the entire length of the frock.

There is no sash, but the material itself ties on the side in loops and long ends.

Repeating the sage green of the silk is a hat of straw which has a scarf trimming of green crepe de chine.

A LITTLE DIPLOMACY

"I think there ought to be a law against pretty young women going into a busy man's office and making him part with perfectly good dollars for some perfectly worthless tickets," said the lawyer coming home from his office.

"The pretty ones are not the only offenders," began the insurance man. "I—"

"What are your tickets for?" asked the real estate broker.

"I don't know," replied the lawyer, taking one out of the envelope and reading it, "but the vision who came into the office selling them was beautiful and young, with dimples and a ravishing smile, so I took five. What shall I do with 'em?"

"Why don't you give them to your wife and daughter?" suggested the real estate broker.

"Not much," declared the lawyer. "I used to bring them home, but I found it was too expensive. If the tickets happened to be for some classy affair they'd make me tog out in my best dress suit, no matter how tired I was, drive them down to the scene of festivities, or hire a taxi, and then invariably insisted upon a supper as a final windup.

"If the tickets were for some ordinary doings, I'd get a calling down for wasting my good money on such things. So now I don't say anything about them at all to my loving family, but slip them to the bookkeeper or the cleaning woman."

"Why not use a little diplomacy in side-stepping these office disturbers?" asked the insurance man. "Take my own case. Miss Pothooks used to be my stenographer, and while her good looks were chiefly conspicuous by their absence, still she was a very efficient worker. Efficiency was her middle name. She got married about two years ago and I gave her a set of flat silver as a token of my regret at having to give her up. Capable stenographers are a rarity and I sighed to think I was losing her forevermore. But not so.

"Having a great deal of leisure time, she joined numerous clubs and societies and it became the absorbing interest of her life to go around selling tickets for the money-making affairs of the different organizations she belongs to. It was the height of her ambition to sell more tickets than anybody else in any one club.

"She picked on me right from the start, and she has been coming to the office right along to dispose of the pesky things. She'd always start out with, 'I just happened to be downtown shopping so I thought I'd drop in,' and so on, and calmly place from two to six tickets in my desk and then wait expectantly for the money."

"Couldn't you stall her off some way?"

"I told her one day that I didn't have enough cash on hand to pay for them, but she said she'd take a check, thank you. Her tickets nearly always called for dances, and repeatedly I informed her I didn't dance, but she'd merely smile sweetly, and say that they'd

Former Controller Passes Examinations

H. A. Harrison, of 221 West Lomita, who was formerly controller of the city of Glendale, has just received a very favorable report on the examinations taken by him before the state board of accounting on November 16 and 17.

The report shows that in the theory and practice of accounting and commercial law, Mr. Harrison was passed by the state board and the Institute of American Accounting, and in auditing he passed the state board, while for the Institute of American accounting the result was conditional. A further examination in this latter subject will be taken in May.

be so and so much, as though I were hard of hearing and didn't get it the first time. Anyway, knowing her deadly efficiency, I realized that, if she set out to sell tickets, sell them she would, no matter what the obstacle.

"Yesterday when she came in I had an inspiration. I told her I had left my checkbook home, but wouldn't she like to ride out to the house and see Mrs. Willits, as she might take some tickets. She jumped at my suggestion, and said she'd go right out at once.

"When she left I went to the phone. I knew my wife was out, so when the maid answered the phone I announced that a young woman was coming to the house and that when she asked for Mrs. Willits, she was to call my sister-in-law, who, being the wife of my brother, is also Mrs. Willits."

"Ah!" said the lawyer.

"You see my sister-in-law fell and injured her knee while visiting us, and has to hobble around on crutches until her knee is better. So when the former Miss Pothooks arrived at the house and asked for Mrs. Willits, the maid called her in, as per instructions. When the visitor saw the invalid slowly navigating into the room on crutches, she jumped up and said, 'Oh, pardon me! I came to sell you tickets for a dance, but of course you couldn't use the tickets at all' and rushed off, with my sister-in-law staring after her in amazement."

"She called me up last night just before I left the office, and apologized for all the tickets she had made me buy in the past, saying that she never knew that Mrs. Willits was lame, and why hadn't I ever told her, and now she understood why I never danced, and she would never come into the office with any more tickets to sell, never! She had never seen my wife, but of course it wasn't my fault that she mistook the one Mrs. Willits for the other."

"Diplomacy, all right!" approved the real estate broker. "You should have been a lawyer. And to think you didn't have to buy a single ticket this time."

"Well," admitted the insurance man, shame-facedly, "I sent her a check to cover the price of ten tickets—as an offering of gratitude for future freedom."

The stockholders of each of the banks, through an exchange of shares in The First National Bank of Los Angeles, the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank and the First Securities Company, become co-partners in the entire business of the First National-Pacific-Southwest group. Through the merger agreements there will be in each case continued local control. The benefit to the communities represented by the merging banks will be felt through the added capital placed at their disposal.

Under the statement of condition of December 29 last, the aggregate resources of The First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank were $218,784,708.00. Under the same call for statements the Commercial Bank of San Luis Obispo, with its branches in Atascadero and Paso Robles, showed resources of $6,328,348.00; the California National Bank of Santa Ana $1,658,685.68; and the Security Commercial and Savings Bank of El Centro, $647,768.60.

The officers of the merging banks who will remain in control of the local branches are:

Obispo—J. W. Barneberg, president; H. L. Kemper, vice-president; F. H. Throop, cashier; L. J. Defosset, J. G. Cann and D. Muscio, assistant cashiers. Atascadero branch—L. H. Dart, manager. Paso Robles—W. A. Johnson, manager, and E. M. Kelly, assistant manager.

California National Bank of Santa Ana—J. K. Herman, president; E. E. Vincent, vice-president; E. L. Crawford, cashier; H. S. Sammis and R. M. Doyle, assistant cashiers; A. D. McGarraugh, auditor, and John Cannon, teller. Security Commercial and Savings Bank of El Centro—O. G. Horne, president; J. Stewart Ross, vice-president; A. W. Hyberg, cashier-secretary, and Robert McGovney, assistant cashier.

INSECT WISDOM

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc. (Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

Are human beings wiser than insects? Unhesitatingly an emphatic "Yes" would be returned to such a question. To most people it would seem a question so foolish that it never should be asked.

Yet—Pay attention for a time to the life of some species in the insect world—ants, bees, wasps, beetles, etc. Study their ways carefully. With the aid of the findings of naturalists, get acquainted with their habits.

You are certain to make discoveries that will surprise you and give you a heightened respect for insect intelligence. In especial, as regards many insect tribes, you will be astonished at the ability and willingness all show to work unselfishly for the common good.

They seem to appreciate that the successful maintenance of the colonies wherein they live depends on concerted, harmonious action. Each individual uncomplainingly accepts the tasks allotted to him. Each is content with a fair portion of the gains accruing from the efforts of the group.

Profiteering, limitation of output, ruthless grasping for advantages at the expense of others, are things unknown. All seem aware of what is expected of them, and zealously meet that expectation, regardless of the length of the working day that may be necessary to meet it.

Week after week, with an agreeable freedom from dissension, the diverse duties are faithfully performed, whether it be harvesting, home-building, or nurture of the young. In not a few cases this last involves, not only a foraging for food, but the carrying on of a complicated and curious livestock and dairy industry.

Thus we read of certain ants inhabiting a tall shrub growing in the tropics:

"The leaves of these plants are compound, and the petioles or leaf stalks to which the leaflets are attached have a swollen base and a hollow interior. The ants bite entrances to these convenient hollows, rear their young in them and either carry in plant lice of the kind known as mealy-bugs or tend those which have come in accidentally.

"The plant lice insert their sucking-beaks into the soft tissues of the plant and manufacture from it a sweet juice which they exude at the posterior end, when stimulated by strokes or pats from the antennae of the ants."

Those appointed to tend and milk these lice cattle labor as earnestly as do the builders or diggers and sentinel guardians of the ant communities. You will find among them nothing like the personal laziness and class consciousness too often discernible in the higher beings who contemptuously look down upon the insignificant ants and bees and wasps and beetles.

But can the higher beings justly boast that they behave more intelligently than the insects in point of social co-operation?

Are there not lessons they might learn from the insects—lessons looking to the abolition of the ever-recurring conflicts, the ever more bitter conflicts, between warring elements in a society which is fated to perish unless social harmony be gained?

Think this over. And think it over in no perfunctory fashion. Mankind has too long been at odds with mankind. It has been at odds thus long only because people in general have failed to perceive that in the last scrutiny the interests of all are identical, and that for all the road to ruin is the road of merciless clash and competition.

PLUMBING WORK IS PROGRESSING IN SOUTHWEST

Predicting an unprecedented era of prosperity and business progress for the southern counties of California within the next ten years, John W. Kemp, chairman of the publicity and statistical committee of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, praised the plumbing industry for the great strides it has made in better sanitation at a recent meeting of the Sanitary Development League.

As evidence of the advance made by the industry he compared modern conditions with those of less than a century ago when in several states bathing was prohibited by law. He stated that as late as 1848 Pennsylvania had a law which branded bathing as a work of the devil and set a penalty for violation of the ordinance.

The plumbing industry in Southern California, particularly in the territory we term the "back country," he said, "Your campaign to educate the public to a higher conception of sanitation, to show the economy and health advantages in the use of better plumbing materials and the highest grade of workmanship, is sure to get a hearty response from all thinking citizens."

"The Chamber of Commerce is back of every movement of this kind, for you are helping to build for coming generations, to insure our people against disease and the countless evils that come from lack of proper sanitation and the installation of cheap and low grade materials."

E. C. Shilling presided at the meeting which was attended by more than 200 representatives of the plumbing industry in Southern California cities. It was reported that Redlands and the Santa Monica Bay district have a 100 per cent membership in the league, which covers every county.

Truths in Epigram

A little philosophy inclineth a man's mind to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion.—Bacon.

In all the range of accepted maxims there is none, take it for all in all, more thoroughly abominable than this one as to the sowing of wild oats.—Thomas Hughes.

BOSSING THE NAVAJO

Navajo Indians are indignant over a recent order of the interior department depriving them of rights that they have had since 1868. These Indians have been a pure democracy. Every male over 18 has had the privilege of voting on questions of tribal policy. In the last few years this privilege has been extended to the women. By the terms of the recent order there will be a new tribal council under control of an Indian commissioner. In other words the Navajos, having proved their capacity for self-government are to be forbidden to exercise it. Doubtless they look upon the proposed arrangement with suspicion. The manner in which agents and commissioners have ignored the rights of Indians must be quite familiar to so intelligent a branch of the Indian family. They have every reason to believe that with an appointed commissioner at the head of affairs, the needs, as well as the legitimate desires, of the Indians will be given no consideration. The tribe will be reduced to a lower status than had existed since the signing of the treaty of peace by the terms of which they have governed themselves.

That the land of the Navajos has become very valuable, that it is prospectively an oil producing section, may (but only by the very high-minded), be regarded as having nothing to do with the case. If the white man wants the lands, in all probability a shrewd commissioner will be able to figure out a method to make the transfer of title legal and moral. It has been done before many times.

Had the Indians been treated justly from the beginning, there would have been no Indian problem now, no fat pickings for attaches of the government, nothing for the dishonest agent. The entire policy has been a ghastly mistake.

OLD AT FIFTY

Pupils of a Chicago school recently engaged in a strike because of the dismissal of their teacher. The ground for dismissing him was that he was too old; and he was fifty. As to the outcome of the strike no report is at hand. The indignation of the pupils was wholly justifiable. It must have been shared by parents. Turning a man out of his profession at fifty on the ground that such maturity is the limit of usefulness, not only is brutality but a stupid error of which no competent educational body could have been guilty.

Regrets often have been expressed that more men do not take up teaching as a life work. The Chicago board seems to have supplied one of the reasons for reluctance. No man takes up a life work in the expectation that the span of life is to be fifty years, and at that time the work shall cease. Teaching is a dignified and highly useful calling. The remuneration is not great, and yet there are afforded chances at situations well worth while. The principal of a large city school has a place involving heavy responsibility. The salary is not niggardly. He may become superintendent of schools—that is among his chances—and then his work is recognized as vital in its bearing on the social welfare. He is more than decently paid. But if senility is to be adjudged to have set in at fifty, no young man of reasonable pride will consent to teach more than temporarily in the public schools. His service there will be a mere stop-gap, engaging his energies in part until he shall have found a calling acceptable to himself, and to which he is acceptable on a permanent basis.

GALLANT JURORS

For the third time a woman charged with violation of the Wright act has been acquitted. The case is of more than usual interest. Nothing is said in the account of it as to the attractiveness of the defendant. Perhaps the matter of looks did not have any weight with the jurors. They may have decided in accordance with the law as they understood it, and the facts, as they were aware of them. It is not always wise, and it may not be fair, to pass judgment on the conduct and motives of twelve jurors. In the instance cited, thirty-six jurors would have to be under condemnation equally. Yet the matter does have an odd look.

Four investigators from the district attorney's office were witnesses in the last trial. They swore that they had purchased liquor at the home of the woman. The accused made oath that she never has seen any of the four, never had sold any whisky, never had had any whisky. The jury accepted the word of the prisoner against the combined word of the prosecution. This leaves the witnesses in a state that easily might be regarded as embarrassing. Either the jury did not believe them, thus tacitly implying the charge of perjury, or believing them, did not propose to permit the Wright law to be made effective. In New York, and other large cities, juries have acquitted the sellers of illicit liquor in the face of overwhelming testimony and visible evidence. If such course is indicative of the humor of jurors in general, reform is essential. It is not a trifling crime when jurors, sworn to do their duty, decline to do it. Or if prosecutors are detected manufacturing evidence and hatching up testimony something is due to be done about that, too.

A great harbor has been constructed at San Pedro. It seems destined soon to do more business than any other harbor on the Pacific coast. By a singular oversight the harbor has been permitted to reach its present stage without the provision of adequate highways by which to haul incoming and outgoing cargo. Doubtless the growth of port business has been far more rapid than expected, and the lack of facilities is not without present excuse. The excuse, however, does not hold good for the future.

JUSTICE AT HERRIN.

To mention justice at Herrin hardly is correct. So far as signs may be interpreted, there is no justice at Herrin. Nevertheless the place is not without the machinery supposed to function in promotion of the quality so markedly absent. There is the mill, grinding all the more noisily because of lack of grit.

The murders of Herrin, although they occurred several months ago, are still remembered because for deliberateness and ferocity they stood out with appalling horror, making a deep impression. They were committed in the open, in the sight of many, by men who later boasted of their deed. There were a score or so of victims. A strike was on in the coal mines. The hapless men butchered had opposed the strike. Doubtless the public temper, the public siding with the strikers, had been wrought to high pitch. Nevertheless that it could be used as the pretext for wholesale slaughter had not been reckoned among possibilities.

At first the community, apparently pleased at having been the scene of a tragedy, scoffed at the notion that any one could be brought to trial. Nevertheless a number of the killers were arrested, tried and acquitted. There was nothing in the evidence to show that they were not guilty. Nevertheless the astounding verdict clearing them was rendered promptly. Probably no modern court ever had been the place of so farcical a proceeding.

Now a second group is on trial. There appears to be no reason to expect them to be found guilty, nor to believe them innocent. In the Herrin community, the law has broken down utterly.

The ultra violet ray is now being used in treatment of tuberculosis. Perhaps it will be effective through its influence on the germs of the disease. However, to the layman is recalled the blue glass craze that prevailed in this country nearly half a century ago. At that time light passing through blue glass was supposed to be a panacea for all human ills.

Flying 240 miles in two hours and forty minutes, a Michigan doctor saved the life of an injured man who without treatment must have died in a short time. Perhaps it would be well to think of the art of flying more in relation to the good it may accomplish, in peace and less concerning the number of diabolic bombs an airplane might drop in war.

ENJOYMENT OF MUSIC

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Music is not a luxury. It is a necessity. Of course what you call a necessity depends upon what sort of life you want to live. If you are an animal, about all the necessities you know is something to eat and drink, and if you want to lead a low, ignorant life, just toiling through the world and getting only its coarse pleasures, you do not need much more than an animal.

But all parents want their children to have a larger life, to have advantages better than their parents had and to get on and be happy in the world.

And music is perhaps the strongest pillar of culture; it is the passport to the society of gentle folk; it is the front door to the house of life.

To know what is good music, to understand it and to take part in it widens the mind and deepens the heart.

The reason why so many of us care little for music is that we do not know it. We love what we understand. We are apt to despise what we do not understand.

To give your child an education in the rudiments of music is to put into his hands the tools from which he can build himself a vast deal of happiness.

Money can be spent or lost. The equipment of a musical education is something "moth and rust" cannot corrupt nor thieves break through and steal.

No one can be a master of literature until he first of all learns to use language, and no one can be a musician until he has made the fundamentals of a musical education his own.

Inspiration and joy in music are the end desired, but they cannot be attained unless they are based upon the solid foundation of a musical education.

The basis of true and permanent feeling is always accurate and scientific training.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

DISCUSSION CLUB

(Jan.)

"About Their Coming" and "Public Want" "P. T." Mervens, Washington. In regard to your sentence, "There is no doubt about their coming," I would consider it correct, as you have, if the meaning of some is that they have not started. If they have started I should express the thought otherwise than the sentence above.

In the sentence, "The public want to be fooled," public, while plural as to the number of persons considered, is singular here, as it means one of two or more groups of people, therefore I think that "wants" is better than "want" to be "foiled." As to grammatical sound there would be little difference between the verbs.

Mr. Nicholson: The doubt is about the idea coming, not about them. Whose coming is the doubt about? The answer is "their coming," and it makes no difference whether they have started, or are simply planning the trip.

Want is correct in the sentence, "The public want to be fooled." Public, as here used, synonymizes a collection of individuals, and they want to be fooled; each one wants to be fooled. But when you speak of them all, you say, "The public want to be fooled."

There are errors in the foregoing communication. "The Right Word" retained these errors in order that they might be pointed out and corrected for the benefit of the correspondent, as well as others who may read this article.

Would should be changed to should in "I would consider it correct." The loose use of the word same. The first sentence might have been written, "... if its meaning is that they have not started."

Farther along, "Therefore, I think that..." should have begun a new sentence. Carelessness was the cause of the spelling "foold." Carelessness is inexcusable. The word English should always be spelled with a capital.

The last sentence is meaningless.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

I live in a country where there is freedom and justice and opportunity. I am able to live there because brave men and women founded it and defended it and cherished it.

I live beneath a flag that protects me in my life, family and property. I live beneath that flag because patriots gave me that heritage.

I am able to express myself without fear and to pursue my vocation without interference.

I am able to do those things because men and women were willing to die for the sacred cause of human freedom.

Because martyrs were willing to die rather than that the cause of freedom be lost.

I live by and with a religion that gives me comfort and consolation and that lessens the life of people and nations.

A religion that teaches brotherhood and unselfishness and mercy and tolerance. I have that religion because there was One willing to die on the cross in defense of it.

I live with comfort and through the blessings of scientific achievement and discovery. I live so because thoughtful men have studied and planned and wondered and wrought for me.

They have found hidden truths and made them clear.

I live in community with my fellows under a system of laws that pledges social fellowship and justice.

I live under those laws because brave men have planned them and defended them. And I live in a state of health. Because great men have sought the truth and learned how to combat disease and rid me of plagues and pestilences.

I live with some education. Because devoted individuals have fought for the cause of education.

Because men and women have spent long days and nights in finding for me the truths of life.

Because what was once the privilege of the few is now the opportunity of the many.

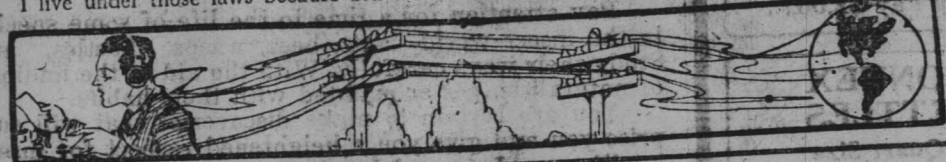

I wear clothing that protects me from the inclemency of the weather. Because some one tended flocks on the hills and sheared the sheep and wove the wool in a loom.

I eat wholesome food. Because some one plowed the soil and sowed the wheat and tended the herds and wrought with the reaper and share and scythe.

So I am indebted to many persons, past and present. To the patriots who had courage. To the thinkers who had vision. To the martyrs to human truth who died for it.

To the discoverers who fared far. To the heroes who fought. To the scientists who studied. To the healers who have met and overcome plague and pestilence.

And I am grateful. Grateful to all of the men and women, known and unknown, honored and unsung, remembered and forgotten, who have added their spirit and toil and strength to the beauty of human existence and opportunity.

Songs of the Poets

The Philosophers—By Robert Graves

Thought has a bias,
Direction a bend,
Space its inhibitions,
Time a dead end.

Is whiteness white?
Oh, then, call it black:
Farthest from the truth
Is yet halfway back.

Effect ordains Cause,
Head swalloweth its tail;
Does whale engulf sprat,
Or sprat assume whale?

Contentions weary,
It giddies us to think,
Then kiss, girl, kiss!
Or drink, fellow, drink!

ETHICS OF THE SARDINE CAN

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Packed sardines need no ethics. They are dead and no one volens they get on together. Though they get no further than the table.

Human sardines are different. They meet under circumstances quite as intimate as the funny variety; but they are vastly more uncomfortable. From this you will gather that I refer to folks who ride in big cities.

During rush hours everybody on a street car is uncomfortable. That sentence would be true if it led to nothing else, and so it's going to lead to a few pointed comments on street car manners.

The people of the wide spaces may rely along fairly well without the exercise of patience and courtesy; but humanity at close range needs courtesy as fish need water.

Because business folk know that they are due to be unbearable, crowded before their afternoon ride is over, many of them take advantage of empty seats to sit alone a few dozen seats with her collected progeny, firmly refusing to "see" passengers who have paid a good, and sufficient fare, and so making them stand all the way to the end of the line. Conductors seldom interfere with this form of petty larceny; they are too much impressed with the commonly accepted blash about mothers.

But of all forms of street car discourtesy, the worst is the rudeness of the well dressed woman who glares at her seat mate in plain clothes and shows by every attitude of face and gesture her regard for a few minutes parked here or there.

Here he comes down the aisle and passes up every possible seat until he finds one beside the man who is bringing home a section of the family washing. Here he sticks like a concrete column and glares at the bundles until the owner has to remove them and pile them on the floor.

And did you ever take note of the maternal seat-hog? I refer to the woman who pays one fare and then fills half a dozen seats with her collected progeny, firmly refusing to "see" passengers who have paid a good, and sufficient fare, and so making them stand all the way to the end of the line. Conductors seldom interfere with this form of petty larceny; they are too much impressed with the commonly accepted blash about mothers.

In a crowded car everybody is uncomfortable. The least the companions in misery can do is to refrain from increasing the misery of their neighbors.

Some of us can enlarge a street car; but we can enlarge our hearts, our sympathies and our understandings.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

A MISFIT

(E. W. Howe's Monthly)

Robert M. La Follette has ability, but it is the ability of the politician. The man has been in school or politics all his life, and knows nothing of practical affairs. For a time he was considered a traitor, and possibly sneaky, for a year he never went near the United States senate, of which he was a member, because of suspicions attaching to him. If he entered a room or street car in Washington, others left it.

Yet this man is today, because of the ridiculous political see-saw, possibly our most powerful public man. No doubt he has always done his best; I hear of no scandal attaching to his name, but he knows no more of the real needs of the people than a poet, editor or writer, evangelist, baseball player, painter or suffragette.

He has devoted his life to acquiring an education, and acquiring no education of value. He is a smart man, of a kind, but his smartness is not of the kind needed in public affairs.

VICE PRESIDENT'S PAY

[Springfield Republican]

The vice president's salary should be increased. It is not necessary that the vice president should be housed and provided for on an elaborate or ostentatious scale. But he should have a salary fully adequate to the demands of a modest yet dignified mode of life. He should not be left to be dependent, in case he is not a man of private fortune, upon the returns from lectures or magazine articles or upon other outside additions to a meager salary.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Into the distance fades the Civil war. Those who fought it have passed away by a large majority. Many of the surviving soldiers live in the past, fighting the old battles with feeble gesture. But are the stirring songs of the sixties to be forgotten, too?

Many who were lads when first those songs were sung remember them, as they remember the sky-blue overcoats of the soldiers who came back from the army. But hardly ever do they hear the songs. Nobody seems to sing them any more.

One of the most stirring to which armies marched was "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching." It was written by William A. Root, who at the age of 88, has just gone to rest. At one time the name of Root was familiar in humbler musical circles. So long had he been retired that the notice of his death brings him to mind as a dim figure out of the long ago.

The song in question was thrilling and it became dear to the public fancy. It remained familiar for some years after the war, and then, as the last sky-blue overcoat disappeared, the song that had rung in camp and garrison, and along the dusky pikes of the southland, also vanished.

"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching." It may be believed that they still march, and that, as the living veterans, they recount the battles that were, and the songs that sweetened years of strife. And it does not test the faith too much when imagination conjures up a mighty host of the boys extending a welcome to the maker of their great war song.

Federal tax receipts in southern California for January showed a wonderful increase in every department. There was more business, more manufacturing and more indulgence in amusement. In every line there was an increase in the volume of taxes, although in many instances the rate of taxation had been materially reduced.

As a result of his rash expression of opinion he was fined fifteen million marks, a penalty of dreadful portent unless the marks be converted into real money.

According to a drug addict, Mrs. Clara Phillips is in Mexico and he had met her in an opium den there.

Above all else, a drug addict is a liar. If one more of the sort were to come forward to confirm the statement of the first, suspicion that this woman really is in Canada would become an established belief.

In recording the news of the underworld, as the other world likes to have the record made, there will be necessity for mentioning the desperado Alguin often enough. He is a professional criminal, dope fiend, an assassin, soon to be on trial for his life. The effort of the correspondent to weave a romance with this degenerate as the hero. To picture a fair senorita in love with an ignorant, depraved, ugly habitue of cottle-infested jails, was to go considerably beyond any acceptable reportorial license.

A Canadian engineer has returned from Sierra Leone with the tale of dreadful, towering monsters of the sea. He says these creatures inhabit the submerged mountains of the west African coast, and describes one of them as rearing to great height. It has a body fifty feet long anyhow, a head like a horse's, and it hisses something fierce.

Few people who have gone to sea have had the felicity to view such creatures. It is some comfort to know that they disport outside the three-mile limit.

One writer wants to couple the names of Edison and Lincoln because both could stand the test of two questions: "Was he sincere? Was he useful?"

Nonsense. Uncounted millions of men whose names have been forgotten could have stood that test.

The government has canceled a warrant for the deportation of a young Korean, and thereby doubtless saved his life. He does not seem to be a particularly desirable citizen at that, but he had committed no capital offense in this country. Had he been sent home, Japan would have killed him as a revolutionist.

Considering the manner in which Japan invaded Korea without warrant, and stayed there without show of right, it is impossible for any country loving liberty, to think harshly of a Korean for seeking to expel the intruder.

When a Kansas City policeman killed a bandit the other night he was surprised to find that the victim was a school football hero. That revealed a combination of characteristics that could not have been expected.

Let it be hoped that the young athlete was winning a bet or being initiated into something.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

The Colonel says that when you are telling a story to a group of men—and one of them sits there with his eyes on you—and a smile wreathes his lips—and apparently engrossed in what you are saying—

"He isn't listening to your story at all," says the Colonel. "He's running over in his mind the story he plans to tell, and which will blast you right out of the water."

Like enough there's something in that. That is about the way most of us operate when there are more important things at stake than telling the best fish story. And it is the way we should operate, too. Generosity can be a vice instead of a virtue. Most of us owe it to ourselves to take care of ourselves first. The world spins around the pivot of selfishness. Take that away and the world would go screaming off into space. This may not be pleasant doctrine, but—take a moment to think it over—isn't there something in it?

I have a dear old pal who works hard every day of his life. His wife is a kindly, thoughtful, lovable woman, and thanks to her they have piled away enough to ensure them comfort in old age. But she has been forced to be on the lookout against the ungenerous generosity of her spouse every blessed minute. Some time ago they took a young woman into the house. She is kindly and pretty and engaged to be married.

"I think we ought to give her our summer cottage for a wedding present," said my dear old pal. "Sort of encourage her, you know."

That cottage had been built to be their own refuge. The wife had saved and dreamed and talked and thought of it for years. My old pal had just had a rush of unthinking generosity to the wife. He would not only have to give up his wife and himself a real head, but he had wounded her sensitive heart. She thought that injury, but he had wounded her sensitive heart. She thought that injury, but he had wounded her sensitive heart. She thought that injury, but he had wounded her sensitive heart.

BUSINESS BOOM REACHES THE FARMER

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—The business boom sweeping through industrial America has at last reached the farmer.

"The farmer is in a far better position today than he has been at any time during the past two years," Frank W. Waddell, vice president of Armour & Co., told the United Press.

"The recovery of the farmer is due to two economic facts," Waddell said. "First, he has readjusted his operations to domestic demands, and second, the large and bountiful production of last year."

"The livestock farmer has been particularly prosperous, but this does not apply to the ranchman of the far west who has not been so successful in the readjustment of operations governing the marketing of grass fed cattle."

"But the farmer who goes in for agriculture generally and uses live stock as a means of marketing his grain, has been eminently successful."

"Prices for the best hogs and beef cattle have been high. The farmers of the middle west are classed as feeders and but what is called 'unfinished' cattle from the breeder, feed them intensively and then market them. Feeders made from two to five cents a pound on this transaction last fall."

"A year ago corn growers were begging someone to take their crop and it was even suggested that corn be used for fuel. At that time the hog market strengthened and the demand was large. This established an immediate market for corn which netted the farmer twice as much in the form of pork as he would have obtained for the grain. The same condition held in the better grades of beef."

"As corn rises—and it was due entirely to the increased demand for hogs—wheat advanced in sympathy. This condition held throughout the year."

"The ranchman's financial difficulties were largely due to climatic conditions and the super-abundance

Ruth Looks Good for 1923 Season

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Babe Ruth left New York last fall and went into the farm country of New England full of resolutions and promises.

Senator "Jimmy" Walker, father of the Sunday baseball and the boxing laws, had told the Babe on the eve of his departure that "the dirty faced kids in the street" expected him to be back on his stride next season and the Babe left saying he would.

No efforts have been made to learn if the Babe was keeping his promise to "stay on the wagon" or if he had been chopping wood and plowing the fields, but the Swat King looks like he has been keeping all promises.

He has lost much of his waist line, his eyes are clear and he has the same spring in his walk that he had in 1921, when he was stepping up, hitting 'em and running around the bases.

Ruth says he is going to make a new record next season and if he gets away good in the first week and gets back some of that old confidence, Babe will have a big year and so will baseball.

The hardest thing in keeping a heavyweight stable is keeping 'em heavy, according to James Joy Johnston, the "Boy Bandit," and the champion gatherer of heavyweight hopes.

"They gotta be fed to keep 'em heavyweights and they don't do anything for their feed."

James Joy says Jimmy Dougherty, the Baron of Philadelphia, has had the same experience.

The Baron has in charge a huge colored heavyweight, George Godfrey. George hasn't had a bout in months and he hasn't missed a meal. He earned some money recently acting as a sparring partner in New York with Floyd Johnson.

When he got back to Philadelphia he didn't have a cent. But he did have a new steamer trunk with his name on it, a pair of white spats, a high hat and three canes.

of medium cattle on the market.

The increased demand for corn-fed beef also cut largely into the demand for grass fed cattle.

"Sheep have been unusually high and extremely profitable to producers."

"From every point of view it may be safely said that the livestock producer has led the farmers' march back toward prosperity."

"The cotton planter of the south has done almost as well, because of the steadily advancing prices asked for his product."

"Of all farmers probably the truck and fruit grower near a big city has suffered most. There has been a sharp curtailment in the demand for canned fruits and vegetables. Over production in some instances was so great that it did not pay the trucker to pick his fruit. Labor and distribution costs were high and were largely responsible for the sluggishness of the market for this type of product."

"Of course, the European market will re-open, but it is impossible to guess when."

"It would be absurd to give the impression that the industrial readjustment of this country should be made permanently on a basis of domestic consumption, but, certainly for the present, that is the solution of problems which agriculture is facing."

MEXICO EXPECTS NOTHING FROM THE U. S.

By FREDERICK G. NEUMEIER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MEXICO CITY, Mexico.—Mexico has decided to work out its own salvation without the "paternal blessing" of the state department in Washington.

I learned this authoritatively from a very high official of the Obregon government.

This official informed me that Mexico does not have the intention to reform Articles 27 and 123 of the famous Mexican constitution or the agrarian law to meet the requirements of recognition as laid down by Secretary Hughes.

The Mexican government, he stated, understands thoroughly that while Hughes is secretary of state there can be no recognition until these legislative changes have been effected.

The government, he added, believes on a fifty-fifty basis that it is capable of effecting economic rehabilitation without recognition; in other words, that recognition is not at all necessary for Mexico to progress.

Diplomatically, through the White House, this official stated, the Obregon government would do nothing. However, he did intimate that the Mexican people would appeal direct to the people in the United States and to the "liberal" bloc of senators recently elected to the United States senate.

President Obregon took the office of president over two years ago after being elected by a majority of about twenty-four to one.

Today I find this country at peace, although economic conditions may be considered serious. Expenses are being reduced and the army has been cut and as recently pointed out to me by General Calles, prime minister to Obregon, "the entire country is working."

Calles continued: "Farmers are not turning their plow shares into swords, but just the opposite—they are turning their swords into plow shares."

The high government official quoted above, who is not Calles, would not allow his name used, for obvious reasons, gave me a very interesting inside view of the Obregon regime. He said:

"When Obregon became president and for some time after holding that office, his only love affair, his lone passion, his infatuation, was that with Dame Recognition. He was ready to do everything that he could for this love affair. He expelled labor leaders, ousted what was termed radical governors, wobbled from side to side and never made a straight answer. To his fellow revolutionists, who fought with him, his actions caused only wonderment."

"Later, after the decisions on Article 27 and after Hughes had made the demands for legislative reforms, Obregon took a radical stand. He took the position which the farmers and workers wanted. His 'no' to M. Hughes was a 'yes' to his followers."

"Obregon took the stand that part of Article 27 could not be changed, leaving the other part untouched, and when he turned down Hughes' proposal, he had to come out flatfooted for the agrarian reforms. He found that in Mexico the church did not draw any line of demarcation between its religious, political and social activities."

"It was not until the now famous Murguia revolution that the lines were tightly drawn. At one time this revolution looked, according to press reports, as a serious action against the Obregon government, but it ended only to strengthen the Obregon government. The country was not ripe for a revolution, the people were satisfied. The peasants and the laboring people really made the capture of Murguia possible. They, in a secret underground way which they had learned during the Carranza revolution, communicated with the federal troops and told them of the march of Murguia."

Workers Took Action
"The peasants and the workers continually were on the watch for Murguia. When Murguia was given refuge by a priest in a church, the peasants and workers immediately took action which resulted in the capture and execution of the counter-revolutionary leader."

"It was then that Obregon saw who his friends were. He realized that in order not to suffer the same fate as Madero, who made overtures to the reactionaries, he must overcome the reactionaries and stand by the people who fought with him."

I also find among a certain class of Mexicans that there is a strong impression that the action of President Harding and Hughes in the Mexican question is unifying the Mexican radicals."

It was Sunday morning, and Mr. Newlywed insisted on going downstairs and preparing breakfast.

Half an hour later the little bride descended to the dining-room, and there found breakfast hot and steaming, waiting for her. One gentle, graceful movement with a knife severed the shell of an egg and laid bare its contents. Mrs. Newlywed paused and—

"My dear John," she gasped, "what have you done to these eggs?"

"Boiled them, of course!" retorted John.

"Yes; but for how long?"

"My dear girl, I carried out your instructions to the letter."

"Nonsense! The eggs are as hard as bricks!"

"Well, I only boiled them for twelve minutes!"

"Twelve minutes!" exclaimed Mrs. Newlywed. "But I told you that three minutes was long enough for an egg."

"I'm quite aware of that," retorted her husband proudly. "Accordingly, I allowed twelve minutes for four eggs."

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

APPLE WATER

It was almost the end of the summer but the days were long and very, very warm.

Longer, perhaps, for Bennie than for most people, for Bennie, a boy of seventeen, had fallen under a heavy truck and had both legs crushed. There had been long days and nights of pain and suffering, and now there were long days of helpless waiting. Perhaps he would walk again, perhaps not. All there was for Bennie to do was wait.

So the days were very long. The walls of the hospital ward in which he lay seemed very white and bare.

It was during one of these long, useless afternoons that Bennie said to his nurse, wearily, "Will you please take that pitcher of ice water and throw it out of the window?" The nurse took the pitcher and carried it out of the room.

When she came back she carried in her hand a pitcher that did not clink and steam all over with drops of water. It was a whimsical looking pitcher with bright red and green stripes around its fat, little body.

Bennie raised weary eyes. "More ice water! How I hate it."

"I'll never want to drink it again," he said. "It's just like this room, white and bare and dull."

"This is apple water, and the youngsters in the children's ward cry for it," said the nurse. "It's really quite good, and, at least, it is a change."

"Apple water? Never heard of it. Is it good to drink?"

Bennie looked three-quarters interested.

"Try it." And the nurse produced a glass of crushed ice and poured the liquid over it. Then she put a glass tube in it and held it close to Bennie's lips.

Bennie drank, first curiously, then almost eagerly. Then he lay back on his pillow.

"I'll say it's good," he said. "Gee! Makes me think I'd like an apple to eat. A big, red one like the kids shake out of the trees at home—days like this."

Bennie's eyes strayed to the window where a low line of hills drowned in purpling haze.

"I'll get you the biggest, reddest apple Tony has on his stand, when I go out this afternoon," promised the nurse. And for the benefit of mothers who may be racking their brains for a new kind of drink for

LABOR MEETING POSTPONED

MEXICO CITY, Mexico.—The Pan-American Labor Conference which was to be held in Guatemala during March has been postponed until next November, it is reported here. The conference was postponed, it is said, because of differences between labor in various countries, and a special commission will probably tour Latin-American countries to solidify action before the November meeting. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is also the president of this conference.

a sick child or adult, either, for that matter, the recipe for Apple Water follows:

It is simplicity itself. And each drink contains twenty-five calories. All that is necessary is a sour apple, one cup of boiling water, a dash of lemon juice, and a spoonful of sugar.

Without paring it, cut a clean apple into pieces. Cover with the boiling water and sugar. Cover dish and allow to stand till it cools. Then strain, add the lemon juice and serve cold over crushed ice. Dried apples may be used, or two left over baked apples will make a drink that is equally palatable.

If a man is ignorant he may learn, but if he knows too much there is no hope for him.

GOOD DOGS HAVE THEIR FIELD DAY

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 15.—Dogs had their day today when sixty-four prize greyhounds competed for the Waterloo Cup (the "Dogs' Derby" and chief event of Europe's coursing season), on the famous Altcar track.

The competition continues for three days, until the best pair are weeded out to compete in the final.

Coursing is a sport which in England is confined almost to the extremes of society. The lowest of the low, racetrack sharps, all kinds of poachers, etc., are passionately attached to coursing. While the middle-class stand aloof, the highest grades of sporting society are equally enthusiastic about the sport. Generally speaking, the Waterloo Cup meeting is a society affair, but no thoroughbred dog is barred, however humble its ownership, and the meeting attracts an extraordinary mixture of patrons, Dog breeders high and low, rich and poor assemble to witness and criticize the efforts of the best dog-blood in Britain, and huge prizes are offered for the winner, or other capable performers, for breeding purposes. (The dogs are loosed in pairs after a hire and points are awarded for cleverness in cutting off or killing the hare.)

Many a profit is without honor.

SELECT PLUMBING YOURSELF

WHEN you build, there are some things you MUST ATTEND TO PERSONALLY. The most important of these, IS PLUMBING. Don't let a general contractor do it for you. GO DIRECT to a high-class plumber. Consult with him in detail. Give full expression to your own ideas and ideals.

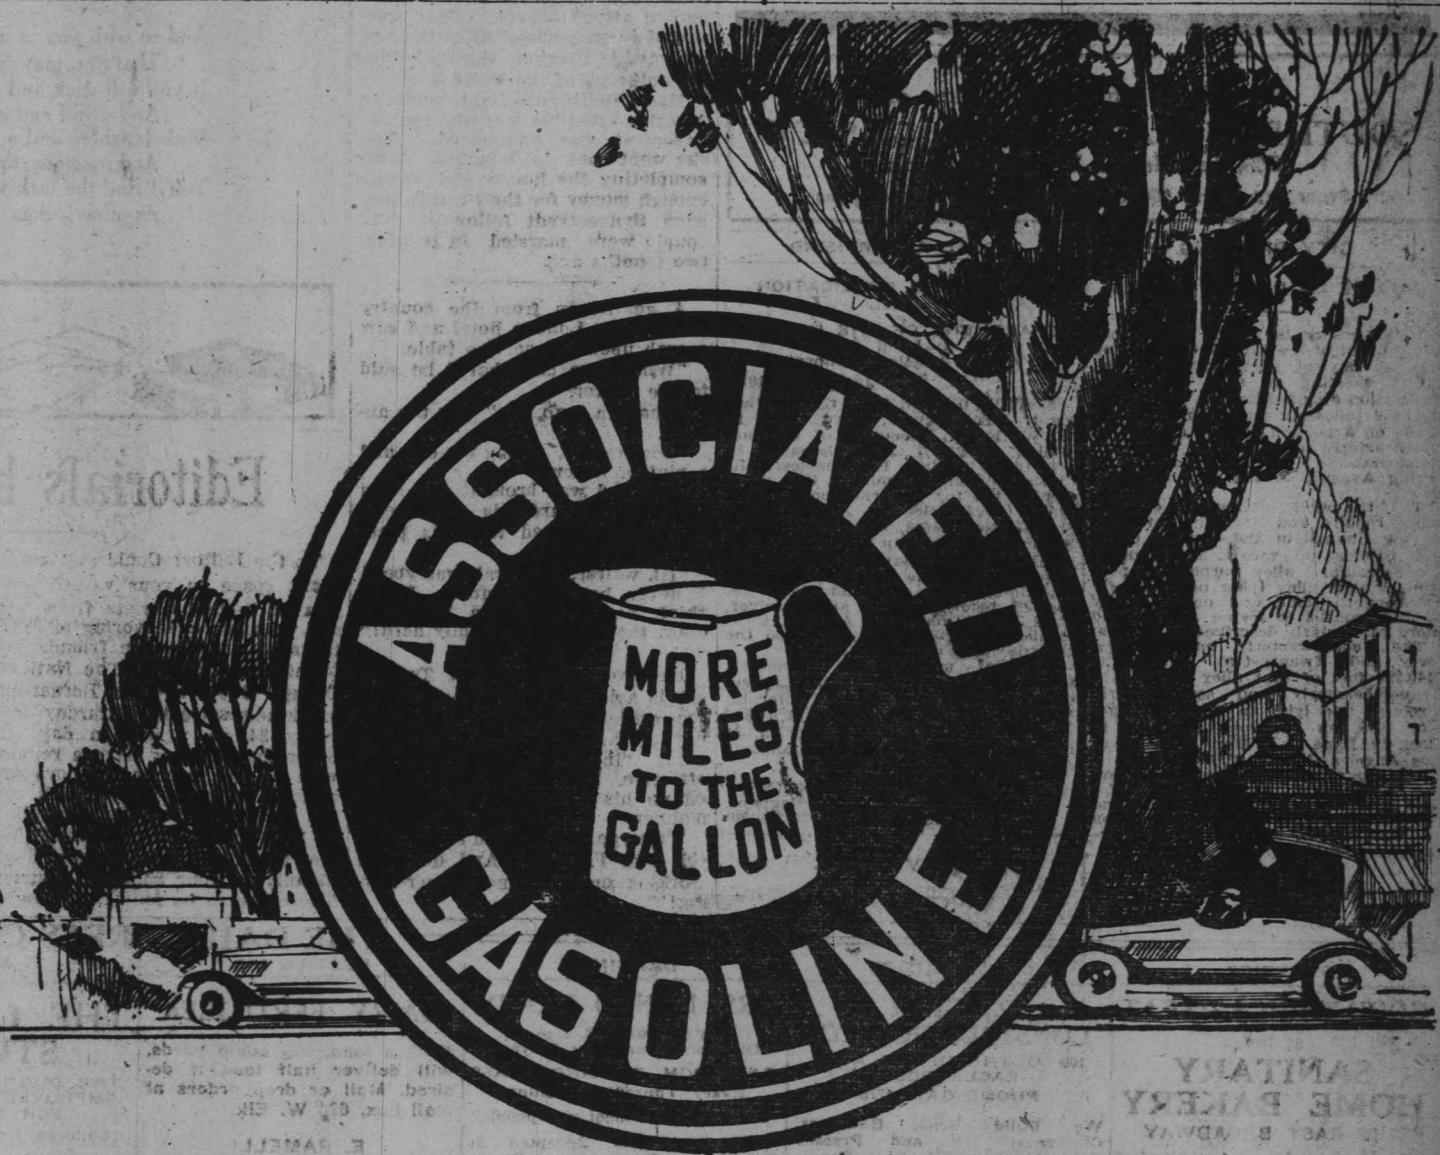

If you select the right plumber, you will find him intelligent, quick to comprehend your thoughts, and with a ready, sympathetic ear for your artistry.

No third party, be he general contractor or otherwise, is qualified to do this for you. It is a personal duty. It concerns the most intimate details of your daily life and in it is involved your health, your happiness, your success.

DO IT YOURSELF. Then you will be satisfied.

UNCLE SAM HOLDS BRIDE FROM LOVE NEST

BYRN ATHYN, Pa., Feb. 15.—A cozy little "love nest" built by Oliver Deron Synnestvedt, furnished by friends without his knowledge, supplied with coal by relatives is ready for occupancy.

It is unattended, however, while Synnestvedt in Belgium is vainly trying to induce immigration officials in Washington to allow him to enter the United States with his bride of two months, Marie Louise Delthre, who was his boyhood sweetheart.

Immigration authorities have decreed that the bride should stay for the time being in Belgium, because the quota from that country has been exhausted.

Rev. Homer Synnestvedt, father of the bridegroom and pastor of the Swedenborgian Church of the New Jerusalem, Pittsburgh, has appealed to Secretary Davis to make an exception of his son and daughter-in-law.

Synnestvedt, an overseas veteran, met Miss Delthre when she came to this country twelve years ago to attend school. They continued to correspond after the girl returned to Belgium, shortly before the outbreak of the world war.

Miss Delthre returned to America after the war and the engagement was announced. Then she went back to Belgium. After completing the house and saving enough money for their return passage Synnestvedt followed. The couple were married in Belgium two months ago.

A gentleman from the country entered the London hotel and saw a crab upon the service table.

"What d'ye call that?" he said to the waiter.

"That's a crab, sir," was the answer.

"Looks good. Bring me one and a pint of butter."

The food was brought and soon the waiter heard his customer's voice and noticed that his plate was quite empty.

"Hi, waiter, that crab was good! I never had one before. But I think you baked it a little too long: the crust was awfully hard!"

Ex-Governor Hooper of Tennessee is said to be in favor of indirect criticism. Speaking of the other day of the transportation act, he said: "Indirect criticism is more effective. I know a man who pulled up his clerk in the following manner:

"George, if Atkinson calls today tell him I'm out. And don't be working or he'll know you're lying!"

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE TASK
Some paper in the type machine,
A rattling of the keys,
Some care in spacing in between,
And lines that come like these.
A bit of friendliness to write,
Perhaps a little fun,
A sentiment that's warm and bright
And then the verse is done.

So very easy don't you see,
Without a bit of doubt;
And when the muse is kind to me
The words come pouring out.
The picture of a girl or boy,
Grass fresh and cool and green,
I tell you it is such a joy
To run a type machine.

I never have to pull my hair
A fitting rhyme to find,
I merely work the keyboard there,
And grind and grind and grind,
And sometimes fast and sometimes slow
The letters and the ink
Mark down the words and then I know
The kind of things I think.

And so with you in any work
That you may have or find,
If you will stick and will not shirk
And grind and grind and grind,
With laughter and a bit of fun
And patience, then somehow
You'll find the task you have is done
As mine is done right now.

Editorials by the People

To the Editor: Could you kindly grant space in your valued local journal to the tourists from Canada, who are endeavoring to reach those of our old-time friends and former schoolmates? The National Orange Show at San Bernardino has kindly set aside Saturday, February 24, as "Canadian day," in order that we may have a reunion with all our former old boys and girls from back home. Will you not aid the hearts' desire of all of us in reaching the very many former Canadians who are now living happily in your beautiful district? There are to be four Canadian societies at the reunion on February 24 and it will result in great benefit to those localities seeking new settlers in their district.

Among the speakers who will appear will be the Hon. T. A. Osborne, British consul; Col. G. W. Andrews of Winnipeg, commander of the famous "Little Black Devils" overseas force; Hon. H. Shaver, president Maple Leaf club; J. P. DuMoulin, president French-Canadian club; Rev. Wm. A. Willis, Toronto, for 40 years head of the British mission in North China, and others.

Thanking you for your kindness,

Swedish Red Cross Nurse Recommended for Nobel Peace Prize

Miss Elsa Brandstrom, head of the Swedish Red Cross, who has just been recommended for the 1923 Nobel Peace Prize, was the Florence Nightingale of the World War to German and Austrian prisoners in Siberia. Later she collected a large fund for war cripples, and with it bought a village in southern Germany. Decorations have been heaped upon her. She is the daughter of the late General Edward Brandstrom, for many years Swedish minister to Russia. She will be the second woman to get the Nobel Peace Prize, worth about $40,000, the Baroness von Sultner of Vienna having received it in 1895.

ATTRACTIVE BAGS
Drawing bags of knitted silk in shades of brown, tan, black, and navy blue, with steel beads, are very smart.

At a reception a woman chatted for some time with a distinguished man of learning and displayed such intelligence that one of the listeners complimented her.

"Oh, really," she said with a smile, "I've merely been concealing my ignorance."

The celebrity spoke gallantly: "Not at all, not at all, madam! Quite the contrary, I assure you."

very sincerely yours,
J. HOOPER,
President Canadian Tourists' Society.

AN ATTRACTIVE OUTFIT

To wear over pleated dresses of crepe de chine are little embroidered coats in contrasting colors and materials. Many tie on the left hip with a bow and long ends of ribbon. Frequently there is a small collar of fur.

Bill Nye was once chatting with Senator Shirley of Maine and remarked that he had been born in Shirley in the senator's state and he supposed the town had been named for one of Shirley's ancestors.

"I don't know," mused the senator. "I didn't even know there was a town named Shirley in Maine."

"Neither did I," said Nye tactfully, "till I was born there."

It's easy to make men believe the things they want to believe.
